THE ROYAL CHINOOK.

The most noble of all food fishes is the Royal Chinook or Big Columbia river Salmon. Owing to the continued depletion of this silver hoarde, the State Conservation Society has taken upon itself the propagation and raising of salmon by artificial means. This film portrays the many little details in connection with this propagating service, and also shows the parent fish struggling, climbing and leaping away to the animal spawning grounds, where, after the eggs are laid, the female dies.

It is the earnest hope that the efforts of the State Conservation fisheries will meet with a reward ;....
